The Doctor of Ministry Program

The vibrancy of the church in Canada and the world depends to a significant extent on effective leaders and ministers. Tyndale's Doctor of Ministry program is designed to improve your capacity and contribution in your God-given vocation.

The three-year program includes two-week spring/summer residencies, one-week winter residencies, online collaboration and resourcing, completion of a major project, and continuance in substantive ministry engagement.

Aims of the Program

The Doctor of Ministry (DMin) program seeks to provide candidates with a collegial, academic, professional, and Christian milieu in which you will:

- Advance your understanding of the nature, purposes, and practice of ministry
- Enhance your ministry competencies in discernment, theological reflection, and in-ministry action research
- Gain opportunities for personal and spiritual growth

Three Tracks

Tyndale offers three curriculum tracks:

1. Ministry Leadership, which emphasizes your character and competencies as a Christian leader, organizational culture, facilitating change, and developing others as leaders.
2. Spiritual Formation, which focuses on your spiritual life and practices, the study of Christian spirituality, and facilitating the formation of others.
3. Preaching and Communication, which attends to your spiritual and character growth, proficiency in the theory and practice of preaching, and awareness of cultural and social contexts for relevantly communicating the gospel and the Christian faith.

Accreditation

Tyndale University College and Seminary is authorized by the province of Ontario, Canada, to confer the Doctor of Ministry degree (Ontario Legislature Bill PR21, 2003). The Commission on Accrediting of the Association of Theological Schools (ATS), the primary accrediting body for seminaries in North America, has approved the offering of the DMin program at Tyndale. The school participates in periodic reviews as part of the process of maintaining the accreditation of its degree programs.

The Nature of a Professional Degree

The Doctor of Ministry is a professional degree. While in some cases it will be considered sufficient for teaching in Christian higher education in the field of practical theology, its primary objective is to provide stimulus and support for personal and professional growth leading to enhanced leadership in churches, schools, missions, and faith-based organizations.

Professional degrees are designed to enhance the professional's practice. These programs usually include one or more projects that are problem/opportunity-based and intervention-oriented. The degree usually requires that a person be currently engaged in their profession, the context of which serves as a laboratory for their personal, professional, and research development. Professional degrees generally take at least three years of part-time study concurrent with professional work. Examples of professional degrees include Doctor of Psychology (PsyD), Doctor of Social Work (DSW), and Doctor of Ministry (DMin).

Research degrees, such as Doctor of Philosophy (PhD), Doctor of Canon Law (JCD), Doctor of Theology (ThD), and Doctor of Science (ScD), are designed to develop theoretical knowledge. In most fields, a research degree is expected for those going into research or the academy. Dissertations are typically based on experiments, observations or arguments intended to contribute to the building of theory in the discipline. Current involvement in a profession is seldom a requirement. In Canada, the United States, and some other countries, course work and examinations typically take two years of full-time study with dissertation research and writing the equivalent of a year or more.

DMin Curriculum and Education

Tyndale's DMin is designed to be completed in 3 to 4 years while continuing in ministry. Each of the program tracks is an integrated whole and includes 12 courses culminating in a research portfolio and oral presentation and hearing. There are four courses scheduled for each year; they run concurrently from May to April each year. Students will normally enter at Year A but their cohort may enter at Year B or C if needed to form a strong learning community.

The program includes 9 weeks of residency in 1- and 2-week blocks; residencies occur in the same calendar weeks each year. Research and collaborative learning continues throughout the year, supported by an interactive website and extensive library resources. Assignments are due at various times and usually the courses attached to the summer residencies have their requirements met by mid fall.

There is a project course each year; when these are completed, you will integrate your projects into a research portfolio that will be the basis for a final hearing.

Each of the tracks in the DMin program, while attending to their distinctive vocation, emphasize growing spiritually, linking theory and practice, enhancing professional competencies, understanding ministry contexts, and developing congregations, organizations or ministries according to their mission.

Adult learning and formational principles inform the pedagogy of Tyndale's DMin program. The formational approach involves self-assessment, peer feedback, spiritual direction or coaching, teaching and assessment by instructors, program advising, community worship while in residence, class sessions that are informative, experiential, interactive and reflective, web-supported interactive learning, relevant reading and assignments, and the integration of conceptual learning, ministry functioning, and project engagement. A program director, track coordinator, and program assistant lead and administer the program. Teams of qualified and experienced scholar-practitioners serve as teachers.

Most students will need to spend at least one day a week on DMin assignments in addition to time spent in residence. Attendance at all classes and cohort events is expected; students should clear their schedule of other responsibilities during the residencies so that there is time for participating, processing, collaborating, and recovering.

Your studies will start 3-4 months before your first residency. Except under special circumstances and with the director's permission, these courses and their related classes and forums are only open to those in the Tyndale DMin program.

Leadership Track

One dimension of all ministry is leadership. Leadership includes helping people move constructively into the future, building others up, and nurturing the health of the organization, ministry, or group. Christian leadership is built on a foundation of sensitivity to the spirit and faithfulness in character and conduct.

Three Foci

Tyndale's DMin Leadership Track is organized around three foci or strands: formation of the leader, organizational culture, and action research.

Focus One: Leadership Formation

The person of the leader is critical in effective and healthy functioning and development of the ministry, congregation, or organization. Issues related to the formation of the leader are engaged from the first intensive and carried through the entire program. Intentionally designed opportunities and activities will facilitate the cohort establishing a rich learning community marked by intellectual, interpersonal, emotional and spiritual trust and challenge, sufficient to sustain students throughout the duration of the program.

The content of this focus includes the provision of a theological, contextual, personal, and functional set of understandings that will enable students to deepen their sense of calling and self-understanding in their growth and development as missional leaders. Standardized self-assessment instruments such as 360-degree feedback and the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator, self-awareness tools such as journaling and solitude retreats, and opportunities for reflection with colleagues and coaches will be employed. Cross-cultural learning experiences bring further clarity to the candidates' self-awareness and cultural sensitivity. Candidates will engage in writing and sharing a personal leadership narrative and development plan and will integrate their own growth and learning into their project/research.

Focus Two: Research

Careful research is one of the key strands integrated throughout the program. This includes literature research, field research, and theological reflection. A key feature of the Tyndale's DMin program is a concerted commitment to assisting students in the successful completion of their research projects. Of equal importance to completing the research portfolio is the cultivation of a reflective and rigorous inquiry stance to self and ministry that should become a lifelong disposition for graduates of the program. A professional degree like the DMin serves candidates best by offering opportunities to engage in theologically grounded inquiry into ministry practice, to conduct a thorough exegesis of the self and context, to develop ministry strategies consonant with the analysis, to implement those ideas, and to assess the outcomes. By taking students through the full cycle of analysis, planning, implementation, and assessment, candidates will develop a way of seeing, a new habitus, that will shape, enliven and enrich their ministry.

Focus Three: Strategic Ministry/Organizational Development

A ministry plan of action needs to emerge from a thorough exegesis of the context (cultural, linguistic, social, economical, political, theological, historical and global) in which the leader is located. Ministry in the contemporary context demands an approach in which the brutal as well as the cherished facts of the self and situation are considered. Discernment, planning, facilitation, and evaluation need to flow from a theological and missional framework, an awareness of the culture and context and an understanding of systems, change, and organizational development.

Research Portfolio

Your research portfolio will be a summative, integrated document demonstrating your learning in the program. A trio of emphases guides the major projects that will make up the body of your portfolio:

1. Exegesis of context. Your life as a leader will be outlined in a Leadership Narrative and the context of your ministry will be described in the Exegeting Your Ministry Context report. An examination of context leads naturally to a consideration of what might benefit from your attention through an action research project.
2. Theory, theology and practice of leadership. Your philosophy or framework for leadership will be articulated in an essay.
3. Action research projects. You will plan, implement, assess, and report on an intentional development or project in your congregation, organization or ministry.

An introductory chapter and a concluding chapter will help integrate the material and contextualize it within broader professional and scholarly concerns. The research portfolio will be the basis for a final presentation and hearing.

Residency Schedule

The DMin school year goes May 1 to April 30. The first residency is the summer residency. On-campus classes are in the same calendar weeks each year: the second and third full weeks in June and the first full week in January. Summer residencies do not include weekend.

Preaching & Communication Track

The Preaching & Communication track is designed for those who want to increase their spiritual sensitivity and their capability to effectively communicate the gospel and the message of Scripture in public settings.

Three Foci

There are four themes which run throughout the program although the first three receive particular emphasis in succeeding years (see Course Sequence).

Focus One: Spiritual and Character Growth

Fruitfulness in communicating God's Word, while ultimately a gift from God, best emerges from the ministry of men and women who are faithful disciples engaged in spiritual practices that facilitate spiritual growth and integrity of character. A person's spiritual pilgrimage, temperament, gifting, life experiences, training, and character all shape the kind of Christian communicator they become.

An integral part of the program will be challenging and facilitating the pursuit of deeper self---knowledge and intimacy with God. The program will help students develop the skill of theological reflection, an essential ministry practice that is especially important for preachers.

Focus Two: Cultural and Contextual Relevance

Good sermons are always a form of contextual theology. The preacher, in dialog with their community, analyzes the congregation in all its uniqueness and diversity, and then crafts the message to fit that particular group.

This program will assist participants to develop skills in contextual and cultural analysis, both the immediate congregational context as well as the larger culture in which that congregation is situated, to the end that the actual issues and life---needs of listeners are addressed with the claims of the Gospel.

Focus Three: Greater Proficiency in the Theory and Practice of Preaching

From its earliest days the church has reflected on its mandate to communicate the gospel of Christ through preaching, including the nature of the preaching task, the multifaceted work of biblical interpretation, the forms and styles of sermons, discerning the needs of the hearers, methods of delivery, and the person of the preacher.

In this program, candidates will reflect upon and articulate their own theological convictions concerning Christian proclamation, they will develop deeper exegetical and hermeneutical skills as they wrestle with the meaning and implications of biblical texts, they will explore the nature of sermon design and experiment with various sermon forms and delivery styles. During this program, students will develop greater proficiency in public speaking and Scripture reading, become familiar with select communication assessment tools, and learn to better assess their own preaching and offer constructive feedback to others.

Research Portfolio

Two key values of the DMin in Preaching at Tyndale are integration and application. In addition to teaching, discussions, and course assignments on preaching and communication, the program includes ongoing coaching in preaching. Each year, program participants will preach and receive feedback which attends to the themes of the courses that year.

In addition, candidates will prepare and complete three research projects that will form the core of the integrative and summative Research Portfolio. Peer review of these projects will occur in the winter residencies and a final hearing will provide an opportunity for a faculty review.

Residency Schedule

10 consecutive days (including weekend) following Victoria Day Holiday (the last Monday before May 25), and the first week after January 1. The first residencies in any given school year are in May.

Course Descriptions

Note: All courses officially run from May 1 to April 30 but residencies times, hours, and assignment due dates vary. Most courses with summer residencies have requirements completed by mid autumn. 0901-0910: Topic Courses; 0911-0920: Expositional Courses; 0941-0950: Project Courses

DMPC 0901 Participating in God's Work: Preaching Foundations

Grounded in the conviction that God speaks by the power of the Holy Spirit when the words of Scripture are read and preached, this course provides an overview of the practice of preaching, with special attention to the theological foundations of proclamation as well as the wisdom gained from preachers and movements of preaching down through the history of the church.

DMPC 0902 Sustaining the Preaching Life: Spiritual Well-Being

John Calvin said all wisdom springs from knowing God and ourselves. Without a deep knowledge of God and self, the preacher is incapable of fulfilling his/her calling. This course ponders the spiritual formation of preachers, including the practices of prayer, contemplate exegesis and theological reflection as essential fundamentals for the preaching task.

DMPC 0904 Embodying the Gospel: Enhancing Communication Skills

Using seminar and workshop settings, the relationship between speech communication, content, form and style in preaching will be addressed. Particular attention will be given to preaching for the ear, preaching with or without manuscripts, the appropriate use of gesture, and the rhetorical virtues of confidence, sincerity and earnestness in the preaching act.

DMPC 0905 Exegeting the Congregation and Community: Research Methods

An exploration of research methods used to acquire a more comprehensive and holistic understanding of the local congregation and its surrounding community. Particular attention will be given to the use of the tools of social science in pastoral practice, congregational studies and contextual theology.

DMPC 0912 Topics in Proclaiming

Proclaiming courses are designed to deepen our understanding of preaching as a theological and pastoral activity of the church in service to the gospel. Different topics are offered each year, such as proclaiming the parables of Jesus; proclaiming Mark's gospel; proclaiming biblical narratives; proclaiming the Psalms; proclaiming the message of the cross, etc. This course must be taken three times, normally once each year of the program.

DMPC 0930 Special Topics in Preaching and Communication

Project will be included in Research Portfolio.

DMPC 0942 Discerning the Setting: Preaching Context and Strategies

Describing and applying understanding of their congregation/ministry in its larger community setting, and propose strategies for preaching that meaningfully and appropriately address their intended audience(s). Project will be included in Research Portfolio. Pre-/Co-requisites: DMIN0903, DMIN0905.

Creating, implementing and assessing a personalized preaching field project in collaboration with members of their own ministry setting. Students will explore an issue or concern related to the ministry of preaching that is biblically based, theologically sound and strategically developed to address a specific aspect of ministry in their context. Project will be included in Research Portfolio.

DMPC 0947 Integration: Research Portfolio and Hearing

Facilitates the completion of the summative Doctor of Ministry document, integrating the main three research projects in a portfolio that meets publication standards. Includes a public presentation and an oral hearing based on the portfolio and the objectives of the program. Normally the last course; usually runs from January to December. Prerequisites: DMPC 0941, 0942, 0943.

Spiritual Formation Track

The Spiritual Formation track is designed for those who want to cultivate their own inner life and to learn how to facilitate spiritual growth in others. It includes a retreat model format for residencies that integrates worship and study, collaboration and silence, community and solitude.

Three Foci

Tyndale's DMin in Spiritual Formation focuses on individuals' spiritual growth, the ministry of spiritual formation and the academic study of Christian spirituality.

Focus One: Personal Spiritual Growth and Practice

Continued personal growth is one of the expected outcomes of this program. The foundation of any effective ministry is people who can discern and cooperate with the work of the Holy Spirit in developing Christ-like character and behaviour. The cultivation of attitudes, beliefs, and practices germane to a faithful and fruitful Christian life is encouraged.

Intentionality, study, community, and personal and theological reflection are conducive to transformation. This track includes retreat-style residencies with routines of prayer, worship, small group sharing, teaching, study, and spiritual and contemplative practices. Each year certain spiritual practices will be emphasized as participants further develop their own spiritual path and rule of life. The project and application courses include attention to the candidate's own spiritual journey and personal and ministry ethics.

Focus Two: The Academic Study of Spirituality

Christian spirituality is the scholarly study of how humans perceive, experience, and relate to God, and how that relationship is nurtured and supported. While spirituality has a growing corpus of its own methods and findings, it draws from a number of cognate disciplines, including biblical theology, systematic theology, ecclesial history, philosophy, psychology, sociology, and world religions. The program explores spiritual formation informed by this multi-disciplinary perspective.

Focus Three: The Ministry of Spiritual Formation

The ministry of spiritual formation seeks to supply the practices and insights whereby the calling, gifts, and graces of the Holy Spirit may be cultivated. Spiritual formation ministry can be exercised in a variety of ways including spiritual direction, pastoring, chaplaincy, small group ministry, discipleship, leader training, Christian education, team leading, counselling, preaching, worship leading, youth and family ministry, parenting, organizational leadership, literary and artistic expressions, social compassion and justice activism, and religious rites and rituals. Learning the principles, dynamics, and methods of spiritual formation enables the awareness of engagement with God, self and others.

In addition to teaching, discussions, and short assignments on applied formation, the program includes a field project in which some aspect of ministry practice is explored. Three research projects provide a guiding framework for reflective, constructive, and adaptive change that contributes to our understanding of spiritual formation and ministry. The three winter residencies provide an opportunity for peer review of projects.

Residency Format

Daily sessions take place in a 24-hour, 5-day retreat setting (Sunday evening to Friday noon). The director, the instructor, the material being covered and the needs of the student shape the specific schedule of each course. However, as a starting point each daily session has 3 “teaching” sessions that will include morning, afternoon, and evening classes. That will be punctuated with common meals (occasionally one in silence), worship and the daily office, rest, recreation, and personal reflection. Sunday evening will include brief overview of the program and week, an introduction from that week’s instructor, and a compline service. The rhythm of the day, the worship services, and the logistics are handled by a retreat master and the DMin staff.

Research Portfolio

The final course in the program includes the completion of the research portfolio, a presentation, and a hearing. Three major projects, as well as an introduction and conclusion, make up the portfolio: one focuses on the inductive learning of spiritual formation by way of writing a spiritual autobiography, another is the critical articulation of theological, spiritual, and pedagogical principles for a manual or model of spiritual formation, and the third is a report on a field-based action research project related to your ministry. The research portfolio will be a demonstration of key learning experiences in the program and serve as the basis for your presentation and hearing.

Spiritual Practices

Towards the aim of assuring that students are formed spiritually through the program we have identified certain spiritual practices that students will learn and explore during the progression of the program. While many courses will address multiple spiritual practices, particular practices have often been paired with specific courses.

Spiritual Direction Certification

Completion of the DMin Spiritual Formation track will satisfy the academic requirements for doing a Spiritual Direction practicum and obtaining a Certified Spiritual Director (CSD) designation granted by the Canadian Council of Professional Certification. Students will need to complete the CSD internship and accumulate the necessary hours to obtain their CSD.

Transfer of Credits

Up to two qualifying courses taken outside of the Spiritual Formation Track curriculum may be used to complete the requirements in this program; the three project courses (DMIN0920, 21, 22) must be completed. A course must be in the area of spiritual formation or spirituality, at an acceptable academic level, and with at least a B average.

Advanced Standing or Transfer of Credit on Admission

An applicant may apply to receive advanced standing (if graduate level) or a transfer of credit (if doctoral level) for up to two qualifying courses as assessed by the DMin Admissions Committee during entry to the spiritual formation track. Only courses beyond an MDiv or beyond an equivalency to a Tyndale MDiv will be considered.

Transfer of Credit on a Letter of Permission

A student may request a letter of permission to take up to two qualifying doctoral-level courses from acceptably accredited school or from another program within Tyndale. Requires pre-approval by the Director. See Seminary Academic Calendar: Transfer Credit on a Letter of Permission for further details.

Residency Schedule

Last two weeks of June and last week of January. The first residencies in any given school year are in June. The residency week goes from Sunday evening to Friday early afternoon.

Year	2019	2020	2020
Weeks	June 16-28	January 26-31	June 14-26
Year	2021	2021	2022

Normally 3 teaching sessions in morning, afternoon, and evening classes, multiple worship sessions daily, and some time for rest, recreation, and personal reflection. Summer residencies do not include the mid-residency weekend. The January residency combines requirements for two courses.

About Tyndale University College & Seminary

Tyndale provides you with an ideal setting in which to pursue your personal and professional goals. You will discover a robust Christian community at Tyndale that supports your desire to effectively engage contemporary culture as a Christian leader. With more than 100 years of history, Tyndale has equipped students to live out their faith in ways relevant to the culture in which they live. Tyndale's commitment to academic excellence provides leaders with the tools they need to thrive in a rapidly changing, postmodern society.

With over 650 students, Tyndale Seminary is one of Canada's largest seminaries with students from over 40 denominations and 60 ethnic backgrounds in a challenging dialogic environment. This cultural mosaic is an ideal setting to further prepare for ministry in an increasingly globalized environment.

The Tyndale campus is located in north Toronto, Canada, a city of international standing that offers students a wide variety of cultural experiences. Half of those living in Toronto were born outside of Canada, making Toronto one of the most multicultural cities in the world. This diversity is reflected in our DMin program.

Statement of Faith

Preamble: Tyndale Seminary is a Christian institution of higher education standing in the Protestant Evangelical tradition. With all Christians East and West, North and South, we affirm the historic Apostles' and Nicene creeds, and we affirm our spiritual kinship with all who seek to exalt and serve the Lord Jesus Christ.

We are also rooted in the Protestant Reformation with its conviction concerning the Lordship of Jesus Christ and the normative authority of Scripture. In the tradition of the Evangelical awakenings, we proclaim the message of a personal faith in the crucified Christ and a transformed life through the Spirit.

Born out of the world missionary movement of the 19th century, we continue to serve the global Church in all its cultural diversity. We embrace the biblical call to seek justice and peace and to serve the poor, the vulnerable, and the oppressed. The following Statement of Faith reflects our own specific theological identity within that worldwide Church.

"We believe that:

1. There is but one true and living God who exists eternally in three persons, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. God alone is Creator, Preserver and Governor of all things visible and invisible, at work in the world to redeem creation.
2. The eternal Son of God, incarnate in Jesus of Nazareth, was conceived by the Holy Spirit and born of the Virgin Mary. He declared God's Kingdom and embodied that reign in His acts. Having rendered a life of perfect human obedience to the Father, He died on the cross as a vicarious and victorious atonement for sin. In His atoning death and bodily resurrection, Christ opened the way of rescue from sin and death, reconciling the world to God. Exalted as Lord, He continues to intercede on behalf of His people.
3. The Bible, both Old and New Testaments together, is Holy Scripture. It is the authoritative written Word of God, inspired by the Holy Spirit, inerrant in all that it teaches, the one entirely trustworthy rule for faith and life. The teachings of Holy Scripture are apprehended through the careful study of the text in all its dimensions, together with prayerful theological reflection, under the guidance of God's Spirit.
4. Human beings alone, both male and female, are created in the image of God. All people are made to enjoy relationship with God, with one another, and with the good creation of which we are stewards. Humankind's sinful disobedience has incurred God's just judgment, bringing sin, guilt, depravity and misery upon all humanity.
5. God in mercy and grace redeems all who repent of their sin and trust Jesus Christ alone for their salvation, justifying them through faith in the Saviour, restoring their relationship with Him, giving them new life by the Holy Spirit, and empowering them for discipleship.
6. The one holy, catholic and apostolic church occurs in local communities of believers all over the world. The Church is the Body of Christ, the people of God, and the fellowship of the Spirit, sent into the world to glorify Jesus Christ and to bear witness to God's dawning Kingdom in word and deed.
7. On a day that has been appointed, Jesus Christ will appear again as judge to raise the righteous unto eternal blessing and the unrighteous unto eternal separation from God. He will consummate His kingdom of peace, and His redeemed will enjoy everlasting life, reigning with Christ in the new heavens and the new earth."
